EarthShare and Sensus Partner to Protect the Environment

Volunteer and donation opportunities to focus on air, land, water and wildlife

DURHAM, N.C., USA, FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE –

Employees at Sensus now have an easy way to impact the health of our communities and quality of life. As part of a partnership with EarthShare, they will learn about, support and volunteer with the agency's network of 500 nonprofit organizations across the country. Environmental and conservation efforts focus on the health of our air, land, water and wildlife.

"Partners like Sensus make a big impact. They help connect people and resources with nonprofit organizations that are driving solutions to energy and sustainability issues, cleaning up our water and air and preserving wildlife and habitat," said EarthShare NC Executive Director Heather Beard.

The collaboration began with a giving campaign for Sensus employees at locations in North Carolina, Georgia, Idaho, Louisiana and Pennsylvania. More than $25,000 was raised to support member nonprofits through employee donations and a Sensus corporate match.

"We believe it is important to be good stewards of the environment and to use our natural resources wisely," said Sensus Chief People Officer Todd Boyle. "With a network of volunteer organizations across the United States, EarthShare gives our employees the chance to volunteer, build team spirit and have an impact on their communities."

Beginning in 2016, Sensus employees will have the opportunity to participate in a number of volunteer activities with EarthShare agencies in their local areas. Options include community gardening, trail maintenance and river clean-ups—all meaningful ways for Sensus employees to support environmental and conservation efforts of interest to them.
